Project Description	The federal Emergency Rent Assistance Program (ERA2) was enacted in March 2021 under the American Rescue Plan act of 2021 which, in combination with ERA1, will provide additional rental and utility assistance to renters across the country. To get assistance to renters, the city continued similarly distributing funds to how ERA1 was spent with some smaller notable changes. To accept applications initiated by renters, Minneapolis continued its use of the statewide application portal – RentHelpMN. We hired 4 community-based processors to process applications received through that portal – these were the same 4 processors that were already working on ERA1 funds. This was an intentional strategy because we knew that our community-based processors would be able to reach the populations they specialize in serving who are in need of Emergency Rental Assistance. We hired a processor to focus on the Somali-speaking and other East African populations; a processor to focus on the Spanish-speaking population, and processors with strong ties to the community. As the program got underway, we asked our processors to focus on incomplete applications to ensure that renters with barriers would still receive assistance. Promotion and Marketing The State, through the Minnesota Housing Finance Agency, has produced a marketing and communications toolkit for the state-wide RentHelpMN application system. The City of Minneapolis has shared marketing materials with its processors and community-based providers for use and dissemination. Program administrators are not responsible for additional content creation but disseminate the provided information through their networks. City staff and program administrators have participated in local cultural radio or tv programs to promote the program. The cultural radio programs reach audiences in the City who may not access materials online. Participation in those radio or tv programs has been coordinated by the City of Minneapolis. The City of Minneapolis focused all its administrative funds on supporting our processors. However, we did use Community Development Block Grant COVID relief funds to hire additional community-based organizations to serve as ERA program navigators. These organizations are using outreach strategies to help renters with incomplete applications complete the process and to identify new renters to apply. They are also assisting renters who may be facing action in housing court. Program Eligibility Program eligibility has five elements that an applicant must meet: 1. Pay rent to live in a housing unit or portion of a unit; 2. Reside in Minneapolis (other MN residents should be referred to other jurisdictions’ programs); 3. Have an annual income at or below 80% of area median income; 4. Be unemployed, have reduced income, or experiencing other financial hardship; and 5. Be at risk of homelessness or housing instability. Prioritization At the launch of the program, funds were made available to eligible renters with past-due rent amounts. Renters with past-due rent amounts were also eligible for prospective rent at the initial application. As required under the federal bill, the City prioritizes applications for households earning 50% of AMI or below and those eligible

applications with a householder unemployed for 90 days or more at the time of application. Navigators Application Process The City of Minneapolis began accepting applications for its COVID Emergency Rental Program in April 2021, through the statewide application system at RentHelpMN.org. The City began using ERA2 funds in December 2021. The City's program can receive applications through this system in one of four ways: 1. Opening the City's program to new applications; 2. Transfer of applications from other programs hosted on the platform; or 3. City application processors start applications on behalf of applicants. 4. To undertake application review, the City of Minneapolis has issued subgrant awards to 5 Minneapolis-specific program administrators to process applications and make payments to program applications. Eligible Expenses Applicants are eligible for up to a total of 18 months of rent and utility assistance, which includes both back rent and upcoming rent. Specifically, we pay: 1. All past due rent and utilities back to March 13, 2020. This does not include March rent, if the rent was due March 1. Rent due after March 13th would be eligible. Utility bills issued for March 2020 service need to be pro-rated to March 13, 2020. 2. Upcoming rent and utilities, up to three months at a time. Rent must be brought current before upcoming rent payments can be approved. Renters can reapply in the future for additional rent assistance, up to their 18-month cap. 3. Fees or other charges that are part of renting the unit, such as garage fees, association fees, and late fees (capped at 8% of rent). <https://www2.minneapolismn.gov/government/programs-initiatives/coronavirus/housing/>

	At the end of December 2020, the federal Emergency Rent

Project Description

Assistance Program (Program) was enacted. This Act allocated $12.9 M to the City of Minneapolis and additional funds to other metro-area jurisdictions, Tribes, and Minnesota Housing. The Program aims to minimize the risk of eviction and housing loss by covering rent and utility costs for renters suffering financially during the pandemic. Minneapolis focused on two methods for distributing Emergency Rental Assistance: applications initiated by renters and applications initiated by property owners. To accept applications initiated by renters, Minneapolis used the statewide application portal – RentHelpMN. We hired 5 community-based processors to process applications received through that portal. This was an intentional strategy because we knew that our community-based processors would be able to reach the populations they specialize in serving who needed Emergency Rental Assistance. We hired a processor to focus on the Somali-speaking and other East African populations; a processor to focus on the Spanish-speaking population, and processors with strong ties to the community. As the program got underway, we asked our processors to focus on incomplete applications to ensure that renters with barriers would still receive assistance. Minneapolis's other method to distribute assistance was through a program marketed exclusively to landlords – The Zero Balance Project – to apply on behalf of renters. The rationale was that there were renters who would not initiate applications on their own, or who had barriers to applying, so a landlord-focused program would reach a set of renters who would not otherwise be reached. This has turned out to be the case – when we have gone through deduplication efforts, most applicants had not applied through the statewide system, and very few had completed applications in both systems. The City of Minneapolis focused its administrative funds on supporting our processors. To supplement this resource, we used Community Development Block Grant COVID relief funds to hire additional community-based organizations to serve as ERA program navigators. These organizations are using outreach strategies to help renters with incomplete applications complete the process and to identify new renters to apply. They are also assisting renters who may be facing action in housing court. Promotion and Marketing The State, through the Minnesota Housing Finance Agency, has produced a marketing and communications toolkit for the state-wide RentHelpMN application system.
